

After landing the ship, Little Red loaded the supplies onto the transport trolley.

Strange-looking workers led her to the docking bay entrance before returning to their duties.

A moment later, the door slid open. A man in a white coat gave Little Red a friendly wave.

She waved back but there was something odd about him.

