

Todd had spotted it first. It was huge, and made of silver-grey metal. It was half buried in the mud, but they could see great fins sticking out at one end. There was only one thing it could be.

A spaceship.

Suddenly there was a great bang on the side of the submarine, then a crack.

They could hear the hiss of water.

