

Chapter 7:

Over the mountain

Sam made a sledge out of chairs and tables from the Cobra. It was hard work but Simon managed to unbolt the engine at last. They lowered it carefully onto the sledge. So far, so good!

They set off. They found the best way was to hold the engine in front of them. Then they could use their rocket packs to push them along.

It was very hard when they got to the mountain. They had to turn off the rockets and climb, pushing the engine at the same time. They knew that if they pushed too hard the engine would float up into space.

