

An hour later, Keisha was trying out a new red top in her bedroom. She was thinking how good would it be not to go to school tomorrow?

At that second she heard the ZZone beep. She ran over to her table and picked it up.

On the screen it said:

How good would it be not to go to school tomorrow?

Keisha stared at the screen in horror. She dropped the ZZone on the floor.

Fall Out

“Is this a wind up?” asked Shelly.

It was the next morning. The girls were sitting on a wall just outside school. It was ten minutes before the bell went.

“I swear,” replied Keisha. “I was thinking how good it would be to miss school today then, two seconds later, the screen said the same thing.”

“You’re freaking me out,” said Shelly.
“Maybe it was just a dream.”

“It wasn’t a dream,” said Keisha crossly.

“Well, is it in the memory? Can I see it?”

