

They locked up the lab and hurried back to the Doc's flat. It was a very windy night. In the distance they could hear the sirens of Police Crew vans.

It took them ten minutes to get back to the Doc's flat. The Doc pressed a code on the wall panel and the door to his flat slid open.

Just then the doorbell rang. Answering the door in this city could be dangerous.

