

They were wearing very old-fashioned clothes.

She grabbed a torch and shone it on the case, looking to see if there were any faded words. But there weren't.

"It must be a film about the ancient Greek Olympics," said Joe.

"But there are no words," replied Kat, "and it doesn't seem like a film - it looks too real."

Before they could speak again, the picture went blurry and suddenly they felt themselves being pulled forward towards the screen at amazing speed.

"WHAT'S GOING ON?" yelled Joe.

"I DON'T KNOW!" shouted back Kat.

