

Hide and Eat

The wildebeest herd scrambles up the muddy river bank. Most of them have survived the crocodiles. Now they have to face a new set of predators. Hiding low in the bushes, two lions wait.

The lions charge! Again the predators pick out a young or a weak one. After the kill, other lions rush over to share the meal.

The rest of the wildebeest are safe — for now.

I'm training to run faster!

Lions like to hide near a waterhole. There is always a lot to eat at the waterhole.

predator	prey	when	amount
bats	insects	per night	3 000
tigers	meat	per meal	7 – 27 kg orcas	seals, sharks, penguins	per day	230 kg

How a lion gets its lunch

A lion has to work hard to eat zebra. Zebras are big animals with bone-breaking hooves. The lion drags the zebra down and bites its throat. The zebra can't breathe and dies.
