

"Oh, come on, Joe," Leo begged.

"I'll make a deal. You wanted to borrow my rubber spider to hide in Hayley's school bag, remember? Well, I'll bring it in on Monday."

The big green eyes sparkled with delight and winked at the other ice cream cone.

"Is it a deal?" grinned Leo.

The ice cream cone gave the thumbs up and led the boys into O'Neil's Ice cream Parlour.

While the sharks polished off their ice cream, Mrs O'Neil moaned about McHaddock's serving cheap ice cream and stealing her customers.

"That ice cream was cool, Joe – ice cool!" joked Leo. "So it's a deal. One scary spider in Hayley's bag on Monday."

Suddenly Matt gave Leo a nudge. Joe O'Neil wasn't in the ice cream suit at all. In fact, Joe had just walked into the ice cream parlour.
