

The dream catcher was round and made of wood. It was covered in threads, a bit like a spider's web. Feathers hung under it.

Anoki's Dad had brought it back from America for him.

"It was made by a real American Indian," said his Dad.